Appalachian Agency for Senior Citizens offers public guardianship services. Public guardianship services are designed for individuals who are incapacitated, indigent and have no suitable person to serve as their guardian. Guardianship ensures that their essential requirements for physical and emotional health are met and that their financial resources are managed.

The Virginia Department of Aging (VDA) has funded Appalachian Agency for Senior Citizens (AASC) to provide public guardianship services to individuals in Buchanan and Tazewell counties. Space is limited to 21 individuals. Contact Mary Colley, Director of Public Guardianship, at 276.964.7114 for more information.
